KANSAS CITY, MO - January 2008 - COMMWORLD of Kansas City, a 26-year-old provider of telecommunications equipment and services for the business community, has announced that the company has been nominated for the prestigious Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce 2008 Small Business of the Year and the "Mr. K" Award. The annual Awards are sponsored by the Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce and the Chamber's Small Business Council. The "Mr. K" Award is named after Kansas City's famous entrepreneur and former owner of the Kansas City Royals, Ewing Kauffman.

This nomination recognizes COMMWORLD as one of the top 1000 metro businesses to be identified as a "Top Small Business". This is quite significant because there are over 68,000 businesses in the greater Kansas City area.

"We are pleased to be nominated for the award again this year," stated Bob Bennett, president of COMMWORLD of Kansas City. "We appreciate the nominations we have received each of the past five years. It is especially gratifying to be nominated by other well-respected members of the business community."

93% of the Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce members are small businesses. This annual celebration of small business has become the largest in the nation. Activities run from March through May with the Top 10 Small Businesses being named in April and one of those winning the "Mr. K" award at the celebration finale in May. Nominees must be members of the Chamber to participate in the activities.
